neighborhood resources

The neighborhood you see today had its roots in the 1870s as the budding town of Harmon. There were greenhouses, residences, and eventually a business district. Over the next 100 years it grew, taking up land adjacent to the creek—and became known as Cherry Creek.

Today, this neighborhood has a 16-block business district, in which most of the restaurants, art galleries, salons, and boutiques are locally owned. The neighborhood shines with beautiful storefronts, playful water features, and a lively atmosphere.

WHY LOCAL?

What's all this hubbub about buying local? Well, to put it simply, when you shop at locally-owned businesses, your money makes a bigger impact in your community. We're talking more jobs, fewer carbon emissions, and vibrant, lively neighborhoods. Learn more at ColoradoLocalFirst.com

one big local-loving green machine

Some neighborhood businesses take their local economic impact to the next level by purchasing wind energy that's generated right here in Colorado. This commitment helps to build the local infrastructure to provide clean, renewable energy to more people in our state.

Because of their efforts, you can now have access to wind energy in your home. Find out more about using wind energy from Xcel's Windsource® program at

partners in sustainability

This guide was produced with support from Xcel Energy's Windsource® Program, the City of Denver in conjunction with the Climate Community Showcase Program, and more than two dozen locally owned retailers located in Cherry Creek.
